

DID YOU KNOW THAT MANY DATABASES WILL AUTOMATICALLY CITE YOUR ARTICLES AND BOOKS?

Let the databases do the citation work for you!

The screenshot shows the Credo database interface. At the top, there's a navigation bar with links like "Library Home", "Library Catalog", "Search Our Collection", and "Ask a Librarian". Below this, the Credo logo and "Home Search" are visible. A search bar contains the text "basic search". The main content area displays the article "Russian Revolution (1905)". On the right side of the article, there's a "Cite Entry" dropdown menu that is open, showing various citation formats: APA, Chicago, Harvard, MLA, EasyBib, Reference Manager, RefWorks, and Zotero. A large purple arrow points from the "Cite Entry" menu towards a text box on the right.
